middling - kind of house, with grand stables.
Messrs. Deane and Blake were there.

They say Sheridan is in love with and wanting to marry Pamela; but whether his red face will charm her is, I think, doubtful, notwithstanding his wit.

The news has arrived of the deposition of Louis XVI.

October, 1792.

Harry has set out for Naples with Abbé Campbell. I envy him spending the winter in that delicious climate and I fancy you do the same.
My sister Anne, the nun, has arrived from Montargis with thirty-five other nuns. I have just seen them.
They are in excellent spirits and are very much fete and kindly treated by everybody. They landed at Brighthelmstone, where the Prince of Wales, as well as Mrs. Fitzherbert, assisted them extremely.
They have the offer of two country-houses, and they mean to establish themselves at one and take pensioners. She hopes we will send our children to hen She gave me a long account of their escape and adventures.

Hussey told me a speech of one of the emigres.

He remarked how poor the English language was, for that one word stood for three different things,
